This is hybrid blog with aspects of social media. Rules will be applied, and comments are regularly checked and deleted if rules are broken. The Blog will require a database to save comments of users along with form submissions. It will be necessary to track posts and comments. Without the implementation of a database comments for specific posts will not be locatable. Database integration will use a database management system such as MySQL to handle comments.